20. On March 30, 2018, Plaintiff propounded his Deposition Notice on Experian's 30(b)(6) witness, tentatively setting the deposition for May 11, 2018.

B. Specific Description of Discovery that Remains to be Completed

2. Depositions of Plaintiff and Experian's 30(b)(6) witness;
3. As applicable, disclosures of Plaintiff and Experian's experts and rebuttal experts;
4. As applicable, depositions of Plaintiff and Experian's experts and rebuttal experts;
5. Any additional necessary depositions; and
6. Any additional necessary written discovery.

C. Reasons Why the Remaining Discovery Was Not Completed

The parties aver, pursuant to LR 6-1, that good cause exists for the requested extensions. After Plaintiff filed his amended complaint, which contained new putative class allegations, Plaintiff propounded far-reaching and complex class-based discovery on Experian. During the parties' lengthy 26-7 conference on January 8, 2017, and in subsequent informal communications, the parties made and continue to make progress in attempting to structure class-wide discovery in a manner which is

1 both adequate and cost-effective. Specifically, Experian has proposed initially limiting its inquiry
2 into Plaintiff's class claims to a series of discrete internal update codes from its internal production
3 which are related to Plaintiff's consumer dispute, and Plaintiff has expressed a willingness to agree to 4 use any return from such an initial search sample in order to demonstrate that the Class is ascertainable
5 and sufficiently numerous for certification purposes. After discussion between the parties via 6 telephone and email, Experian has indicated that it will be in a position to provide these responses
7 shortly after May 4, 2018.

8 Additional written discovery may be necessary to further define the scope of the Class from 9 Experian's internal systems. Plaintiff's Second Set of Requests for Production requested such 10 information, and more particularized answers to these requests can likely be returned after Experian 11 provides the results of its initial return shortly after May 4, 2018. However, until such discovery is 12 completed or reaches an impasse, disclosure of technical experts, the reports of such experts, and 13 expert depositions is premature and will likely require supplementation and re-deposition. Instead, 14 the parties agree that written discovery into Experian's internal systems and identification of the 15 number of Class members should precede inquiry into expert-related matters. Therefore, granting the 16 stipulation will facilitate the parties' good-faith discussions and provide sufficient time to complete
17 this discovery while minimizing the necessity of seeking court involvement. Therefore, the parties 18 also request that the Court extend the initial and rebuttal expert disclosure dates conterminous with 19 the requested discovery extension.

20 For all of these reasons, the parties request that the Court grant this request for an extension of 21 time.
